

Kings Now Eager to Learn Will of Their People, Daniels Writes

The king business going out of fashion—Remaining kings in Europe have their ears to the ground—George V. put startling question to secretary of navy—The British navy is really the king's navy—Albert of Belgium a teetotaler—King of Italy an indefatigable worker in the war.

By Josephus Daniels
Former Secretary of the Navy

When you speak of "government" in any modern nation which retains a king, you never have the king in mind at all. It means the same thing as when in this country we speak of "the Washington administration." The king has his palace and his functions, but no king, except in a few remaining dynasties, has any power comparable with that of the president of the United States.

It is inconceivable that a king in any European country, having responsible ministries, should undertake to direct large public policies. He may talk in language of ancient days, now gone forever, about "my army" and "my navy" and "my subjects," but these are meaningless words as to real power.

King George's Question

Speaking of their status, I am sure I violate no proprieties by repeating a question which the king of England asked me when I was in London. I found later that it was a question which had percolated through official circles and was the cause of no little merriment. It indicates, too, the British sense of humor, which is better than it has been painted.

"May I ask you a question," said King George, "about a telegram which rumor says you sent to President Wilson a short time after he reached Paris during the peace conference?"

"Certainly," was my reply. And then King George, with a twinkle in his eye, for he loves a story and is not wanting in humor, asked this question:

"Is it true that you sent the following message: 'Washington, D. C., January 1919. 'To Hon. Woodrow Wilson, 'President, 'Paris, France, 'Come home at once. Unless you do so the United States will become a republic.'"

Story Was Popular

That evening at dinner, at the home of a distinguished member of the government, the same question was again asked me. And again in Scotland by an important official just returning from London. It was one of those stories which go the rounds, never being accredited to any particular person, but remaining current in official circles as a stock anecdote at dinners where the talk goes largely to questions relating to public men or public policies.

These inner circle stories are generally told you in utmost confidence, and when you are new in Washington you think they must be held sacred, though you know they are of little importance. Generally, if you have observed the caution "not to mention this story," you find that everybody in officialdom already knows it or it is in process of going the rounds. That fact became so apparent that, a short time after Mr. Wilson became president, a gentleman told him he wished to tell him a secret to be held in confidence.

"No," said President Wilson, "I can not take it. When I first came here I let some friends tell me stories which I was assured were most confidential. I carried these stories concealed on my person, thinking I was the sole recipient of a confidence. After a while I learned that everybody I came in contact with had been told the same extra confidential story.

"Never again. If you tell me the story and I accept it in confidence and keep it, I lose my interest. If I tell the story, received in confidence, I lose my principle."

King George Is Democratic

I found King George most affable and chatty. He loves a good story, and can tell one most effectively. He impressed me as exceedingly well informed, and intelligently alert on all matters of world concern.

He was quite unceremonious and democratic, and I gathered from things he said and from his general attitude that he had reached the conclusion that the time had come in history when a wise king would make himself as unobtrusively useful to his people as possible if he wanted to retain his crown and throne.

He seemed much attached to his horses and cows and to take a genuine pride and interest in his garden and conservatories.

The British talk about their king as a "nice, good-natured man." Somebody said that as a king George V. is a most successful stamp collector. As a matter of fact, the British have a great deal of respect and affection and regard for him. He did two things during the war which pleased them—he worked very hard at whatever the government asked him to do and he kept his hands off the politics and management of the war.

British Navy Is "King's"

I said a moment ago that when the king of England says "my navy," "my army," etc., it is a term that really means nothing. But that is not exactly correct as it applies to the British navy. It is a singular fact, and an anomaly, that the navy of that country is his. No naval officer takes an oath to support the parliament or the government. He is the king's officer, not the nation's, in law. When parliament took over from the kings all their powers the navy still remained "the king's navy," to be directed by him and to uphold the power of the throne in distant colonies and at home. And that remains to this day.

What would happen if "the king's navy" did not follow the decrees of "the government?" If Lloyd George should issue orders to a naval officer that might not be in keeping with the royal desire? It could not happen for no king would express a purpose contrary to the policy of "the government." So in actual practice, after all "the king's navy" is rather a fiction.

One thing I learned at first hand about King George and the Prince of Wales. They knew not only about the British navy, but about all navies. They are keenly interested and fully informed about navy policies and practical navy operations. The king is a naval officer and was trained just like other young Englishmen who made service in the navy a career. His full knowledge of naval matters at home and abroad made our discussion interesting and informing, and when the Prince of Wales came to Washington he had pleasant recollections of a visit to Admiral Rodman's flagship and of the co-operation of the men of the navies of the two countries in the world war. They had a high opinion of Ambassador Walter Hines Page, who left an impression in England that will give him a place for all time as one of America's ablest representatives at the court of St. James.

The King of Belgium

After Joffre, no visitor who took a great part in the war received quite the welcome from the heart which the American people gave to Albert, king of the Belgians. This was due to three things. 1. His heroic stand for the rights of his people to keep Belgium "a country and not a road" when in 1914 resistance to Germany seemed the hopelessness of helplessness. 2. The story of Belgium in war days, told so clearly and so beautifully by Ambassador Brand Whitlock, who remained at his post and rendered great service to humanity, and 3. Albert's own courage and steadfastness and devotion to the welfare of the Belgians.

I found upon talking with him at Brussels and in America that he was keeping up with measures touching the prosperity of Belgium, and deeply interested in the trend all over Europe that presaged a larger share in government by the people. Indeed all the kings I talked with had their ears to the ground. There is not a public officer in the United States, dependent for his tenure upon reelection, who is keener to know what the people want done than are the crowned heads of Europe, who still retain their thrones.

King Albert a "Teetotaler"

Albert would not be called a prohibitionist, though he is what would be called in America "a teetotaler." Though wines are served on his own table, he does not partake, believing that abstinence is the best course to pursue. With King George refraining from wine during the war, with King Albert a teetotaler and the king of Italy a temperance man, those who hope to see the drink habit pass are at least in good society.

Though his cousin, Prince Udine, of Marconi and distinguished Italian officers came to America on a war mission, the king of Italy did not find it possible to come to America for conference with his American associates during the war or since. As a matter of fact he was seldom in his own capital. If the last war had been a war of cavalrymen, it would have been truly said of him, as it was said of Stonewall Jackson: "His headquarters are in the saddle."

The camp, the trenches, the place of peril, the place of comradeship with Italian soldiers, was the headquarters of King Humbert. He does not come up to the ancient idea that a king should stand head and shoulders above his subjects. When you are presented you feel a little disappointed as to his height, but not otherwise. He received the American naval party wearing the uniform of the Italian army. He looked every inch the seasoned soldier and speaks English well.

Visit to Italy's King

He showed his pleasure in greeting Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page, who was beloved by Italians for his personal qualities and his distinguished service in trying days. This was before Ambassador Page's book was printed. That will add to Italian appreciation, as it has informed Americans, and is one of the most valuable contributions of the war history.

Our visit to the king was just before Premier Orlando left him during the critical days of the peace conference. He evidently was following closely its deliberations and talked about the problems which after-war conditions left for solution in the Adriatic and the Mediterranean. He regarded them as grave and calling for world study and world consideration.

He Spoke with genuine appreciation of the pleasure the visit of the president and Mrs. Wilson gave to him and to the Italian people; of the long and friendly relations between the two countries, and particularly the navies of the two nations.

Felt Breakers Ahead

Somehow I felt the critical importance of the impending break at Paris as we talked, not from any-thing the king said, but from his im-pressive attitude as he touched upon some of the questions which have since become so serious. He knew there were breakers ahead, and was even then nerving himself to pilot the ship through the stress of storms that broke within a week after I was in Rome.

As, with Ambassador Page, our company stood in the Coliseum and looked into the bluest of blue skies, with a Caproni carrying a dozen passengers flying over our heads, the reflection came over me that the world had traveled far since Caesar's legions marched through the streets to imperial Rome.

"Westward the course of empire" has taken its flight, but new Rome carries in its bosom the spirit of hope and of adventure which beckon it to its ancient greatness.

Tributes by Boni and Wilson
When President Wilson visited Italy shortly after the armistice, Boni conducted him through the sacred ways of Rome. Pointing out the tomb of Romulus and other sacred places, the distinguished Roman said to the American president, as he presented him with branches of laurel and myrtle: "Today I offer these symbols to you, the upholder of the freedom and civilization of peoples."

President Wilson replied: "These sacred symbols speak a great and profound language."

The reply of the great archaeologist was the most beautiful tribute ever paid to our countrymen: "You Americans have something more sacred still, but you carry it in your hearts—a love of humanity."

To be worthy of that tribute is inspiration and incentive to Americans, today, tomorrow, forever.

NOT TO KNOW IS NO EXCUSE

To Know How to Keep Well Is Better Than to Call in a Doctor to Get Well. Sickness Is a Penalty Not an Accident.

One of the best and most dependable and important preventatives of getting sick, one of the surest ways of keeping well is to form and maintain the exceedingly good habit of regular, thorough, daily bowel evacuation.

That is Nature's "best bet." You should do your best to help Nature, not hinder her in her efforts to keep you well. With the best of good intentions you may employ many methods. Strong, drastic acting medicines that force the bowels to act simply replace one evil by another evil. It may secure temporary action but it produces more than temporary irritation and other bad effects. Don't judge by promise in selecting a simple remedy to assist Nature. Performance is the true test. Take Beecham's for example.

Over 70 years ago people began to take Beecham's. Today millions of people all over the world take Beecham's, recommend Beecham's to their friends, hand the use of Beecham's down from father to son or from mother to daughter for generation after generation. That means much. You never hear any unfavorable criticism or complaint regarding Beecham's. That means much if not more. It takes real merit to withstand the tests of time and trial. You can do much to help Nature keep you well by keeping a box of Beecham's in the house, ready for use at the first warning of disorder or derangement. All druggists sell Beecham's—are glad to sell Beecham's.

MOW BAD BACKS HAVE BEEN MADE STRONG—KIDNEY PILLS CORRECTED

All over Bedford you hear it. Doan's Kidney Pills are keeping up the good work. Bedford people are telling about it—telling of bad backs made sound again. You can believe the testimony of your town's people. They tell it for the benefit of you who are suffering. If your back aches, if you feel lame, sore and miserable, if the kidneys act too frequently, or passages are painful, scanty and off color, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has helped so many of your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor! Follow this Bedford citizen's advice and give Doan's a chance to do the same for you.

J. O. Henderson, Bedford St. says: "For some time I was troubled with my kidneys. Often I had bad headaches and severe pains in the small of my back. At such times I could hardly bend over, the pains would catch me in my back and cause so much misery. I started the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and they did me so much good that I have kept on taking them. Now I have no more headaches or backaches and I have never felt better."

FEEDING GARBAGE TO SWINE

Practical Means of Producing Pork, According to Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

When properly managed, the feeding of garbage to swine is a practical means of pork production, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1133 issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In addition it helps to settle a problem which confronts many cities and towns—that of effective and economical garbage disposal. The wholesomeness of garbage depends greatly on the care it receives in households. Tin cans, glass, paper, oyster shells, sawdust, soap, and other foreign materials when mixed with garbage may cause numerous losses of hogs. But it has been found that this evil can be minimized by proper precaution and published requests to householders to be careful.

Immunizing of hogs is necessary to prevent hog cholera and frequent collection is urged to keep the feed fresh. Copies of the bulletin may be had free by applying to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Birds Mentioned in Bible.

Twenty-one birds are mentioned in the Bible: The bittern, cormorant, crane, cuckoo, dove, eagle, hawk, heron, kite, owl, partridge, pelican, pigeon, quail, raven, sparrow, swallow, swan, stork, turtle and vulture.

Hunter's Unpleasant Companion.

Alligator hunting in the tropics is always exciting, but when you're marooned on a muddy flat, with a wounded alligator for company, and your gun is jammed with mud—that is a real thrill. This is what happened to me, while the rest of my party were a quarter of a mile away. Nothing was left to do except throw mud in the alligator's eyes until I attracted the attention of my friends. After they had sunk about twenty bullets into that alligator we measured him and found him to be 22 feet long.—Chicago Journal.

Discouraged Joiner.

"I have joined quite a number of organizations," remarked Farmer Courtessol, "but I haven't yet found one that'll enable an agriculturist like myself to make payin' dues and listenin' to speeches take the place of regular work."

Annual Rainfall.

There has been recalculated from recent data the amount of rain annually falling upon the earth's surface. It is found that it is equivalent to a layer of water of the uniform depth, for the whole globe, of about 33½ inches. The amount falling on the land is equivalent to a uniform depth of 29½ inches. Considering only the land which is drained by rivers flowing into the sea, it is calculated that only 30 per cent is returned to the ocean, and that the rest is removed by evaporation.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ITEMS

Scranton.—Mexican laborers are invading the anthracite field in large numbers.

Smithfield.—After mink had slaughtered chickens promiscuously in this neighborhood, the animal was caught in a steel trap set by John Bare, Sr., of this place. In the coup in the rear of the Bare home the mink killed eleven chickens before it ran into the trap. The animal measured two feet from the end of its nose to the tip of its tail.

Freeland.—Thieves went to considerable trouble to break into the Adolph Zimmerman property here in the expectation of looting the wholesale liquor store of Charles Dusheck. They were badly fooled, as Dusheck vacated the place some time ago, a fact evidently unknown to the gang.

Bloomsburg.—What is believed to be the smallest coal mine in the United States is located in Columbia county, 12 miles from here. The mine is located on the top of the mountain at Mountain Grove, and does not boast of a breaker. Charles Klingerman and Gulip Ritchie have opened a drift, and the coal they take out is sold as it comes from the mine—huge lumps and small pieces—with the buyer breaking it to the size he desires. Five men are employed by the two owners, making a force of seven in all. Most of the coal is sold to farmers in that vicinity, for there are no shipping facilities, it being impossible to drive up the mountain to the drift.

New Castle.—Announcement was made by Manager W. T. Graham, of the Standard Steel Car company, that resumption of the local plant will be made in three weeks, and that 400 men will be given initial employment at this time. The local plant has been practically shut down the greater part of the summer.

Freeland.—The suggestion has been made to council and the school board that resolutions be passed exonerating from taxation for ten years those who will build homes. This remedy to the housing problem has been offered by quite a few citizens who have made a study of local conditions and who think such a move would stimulate building.

Freeland.—Locals of the United Mine Workers at Freeland, Drifton, Jeddo, Eckley and Sandy Run have started an innovation by employing a union doctor as their physician. They have made an agreement to secure medical service for their families at $1.50 per month. They claim that the other physicians have been charging a higher rate, and $2 additional for night calls. Several years ago the medical societies of Freeland and Hazleton advanced prices, which were made uniform and did away as much as possible with the flat monthly charges, which are now based by most of the doctors on the number of calls.

Harrisburg.—Almost 900 medical men of the state have been commissioned by the state department of health to begin medical inspection of the thousands of pupils in the fourth-class school districts. The expense will be paid by the state.

Uniontown.—Brought here from Pittsburgh in a high-powered motorcar, twenty-two cases of Jamaica ginger were seized by the local authorities just as they were unloaded into a warehouse in East Penn street, just in the rear of the Fayette county jail and the city police station. John Koury, the driver of the car, was placed under arrest by Constable Walter Brown, who had received a tip that the "jaky" had been shipped out of Pittsburgh. This is the first arrest in connection with the Jamaica ginger traffic for many months. It is understood that the coke region is being flooded with the liquor. A sweeping investigation is promised in the "jaky" traffic, it is said, with a number of arrests threatened.

Harrisburg.—The state department of health has approved State College sewer system improvements.

Scranton.—A flock of intoxicated geese startled people here, home brew mash dumped on the river bank being responsible.

Lockport.—James M. Lewis, 70 years old, was held up while going for milk, but the robbers got nothing.

Bloomsburg.—Despondent over a business deal, Harris Margolis, of St. Louis, attempted suicide by poison but will recover.

New Castle.—Two bandits raided Bessemer, ten miles west of here, robbing nine men and escaping in an automobile with loot estimated at $2000, according to reports reaching here. It is believed the men headed for Youngstown. The men who are alleged to have been negroes, were driven by a white chauffeur. The robberies were quickly staged and with such boldness that pursuit which was organized proved fruitless.

Dillersville.—Harry I. Gener, aged 12 years, applied a match to a railroad cap and as the result is in the hospital in a serious condition.

Sunbury.—When their motorcycle turned turtle on a steep hill at Fishers Ferry, near here, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shepley, of this place, were thrown out and rendered unconscious.

Brownsville.—Struck by a train near here, Tony Belovoe, 35, address unknown, was almost instantly killed.

New Kensington.—The plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company has resumed operations on full time.

Harrisburg.—Figures showing that three-fourths of the farms in Pennsylvania are worked by their owners have been completed at the statistical bureau of the state department of agriculture. The farm property in the state, including buildings, machinery and livestock, is over $1,725,000,000. The number of farms is given at 202,252.

Pittsburgh.—A warning against the use of spring and well water was issued here by W. H. Davis, city health director, as a result of a large increase in the number of typhoid fever cases in Pittsburgh during the last two months. Sixty-nine cases have developed during July and August, the director said.

Selinsgrove.—The Herrold, Derr, Watts and Foltz families held reunions at Rolling Green Park, near here.

Reading.—Jenkins Hill, 66, for six years supreme commander of Knights of the Golden Eagle of the United States, is dead here.

Altoona.—After 51 years in the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, G. W. Kinch, freight conductor of this place, went on the retired list.

Harrisburg.—The first brewing company to be incorporated in many months was granted a charter here. It is for a Minersville concern, with a capital of $50,000.

Salem.—Five eggs out of eleven dozen survived the shock of a runaway in which Mrs. Stephen Albert and her little son, of Salem township, Columbia county, were severely hurt and their spring wagon wrecked.

Connellsville.—Forced from his home by a fire caused by a gasoline explosion, Michael Grigak found to his dismay that one of his children had not been taken from the burning building. In rescuing the child he was burned on both arms. The residence was totally destroyed. A gasoline lamp exploded and scattered burning oil in all directions. Virtually nothing was saved from the burning building.

Hazleton.—Thirty-five candidates appeared before the miners' certificate examining board here, the largest class of applicants in many months. Most of them passed the tests and were given their papers. The good times enjoyed in the anthracite region has brought back many former residents who desire to again qualify to work in the mines.

Maryville.—Mrs. Mary Stidole, 35 years old, of Newport, committed suicide by drowning herself in the Juniata river. It was her second attempt to end her life recently, she having taken poison about six weeks ago.

Harrisburg.—The child of an Austrian coal miner, born in Cambria county after the death of the father in an industrial accident, is an American citizen and as such entitled to the benefits of compensation laws of Pennsylvania even though the child has been taken back to the native land of the father and mother, now Czechoslovakia, according to a decision handed down by Chairman Harry A. Mackey, of the state compensation board, in Artink vs. Cambria Steel company. The case is interesting in view of the affirmation of certain principles of citizenship, the chairman referring to the decision of the United States courts that a son of Chinese parents born while they are residing here is an American citizen. In the case decided Mr. Mackey rules that the removal of the mother to her former home does not reduce the son to the status of a non-resident alien dependent.

Greensburg.—In commemoration of the sixth centenary of the death of Dante a bronze tablet, the gift of Italians of Westmoreland county, will be unveiled at the Greensburg high school building, September 14.

Connellsville.—Persistent rumors of a 20 per cent reduction in wages by the H. C. Frick Coke company are denied by company officials. According to rumor, the new cut goes into effect on September 1. Frick's officials say that no new scale is being considered, and that, as far as they have been able to learn, Judge Gary's statement of a reduction does not apply to the H. C. Frick Coke company.

Uniontown.—Babe Ruth has a rival in Fayette county—Miss Anna Glazack, of Fairbanks, a coke town near Uniontown, who in a game between two teams of bloomer girls, knocked two home runs, one with the bases full. The latter slam came in the last inning. The "touch 'em all" blow which gave the Fairbanks team the victory was a vicious smash to middle field. The bases were untenanted when Miss Glazack scored her other four-base bang.

Wyalusing.—W. E. Shoemaker, of Laceyville, state fish warden, was shot and seriously wounded by Peter Walters, of Spring Hill, who secured possession of the gun carried by the warden when placed under arrest for violation of the state fish laws. The injured man's condition is considered serious. Shoemaker arrested Walters and Harry Pond, also of Spring Hill. The men submitted without a protest. Suddenly Walters grabbed the gun worn by Shoemaker from the holster, pointed it point blank at the warden and fired, the shot entering the neck and striking the spine. Both men then escaped. State police are seeking Walters and Pond.

South Towanda.—Falling from an automobile, Mrs. William C. Swartwood, 55, of this place, was instantly killed, her neck having been broken.

Gettysburg.—Captain George N. Randolph, U. S. A., has been added to the teaching staff of the reserve officers' training corps of Gettysburg College.

Milton.—The school board decided not to assess the $5 school tax against women citizens of that borough.

Pittsburgh.—James S. Campbell, an attorney here, died in a hospital in this city while under an anesthetic during an operation for the removal of a tumor.

HARD ON THE POETS

"I'M SCHEDULED to recite 'Annabel Lee' at an entertainment tonight," confessed the retired merchant. "I've been repeating the poem to myself almost constantly for several days, and know every comma in it, but I'm afraid that when I stand up to recite, I'll have forgotten every word of it."

"I hope so," said the hotelkeeper. "Such a poem as 'Annabel Lee' deserves better treatment than you are qualified to give it. You have a voice like a guinea hen, and you telescope your words, and you don't know any more about poetry than a porcupine knows about Paradise. If you'd stand up and recite a few pages from a mail-order catalogue I have no doubt you'd put the proper feeling into it, and move your audience to tears, but it's a crime for a man like you to mangle a beautiful poem, full of sentiment and melody."

"There ought to be a law against that sort of thing. Some of the best poems in the country have been ruined by common or garden elocutionists. Nowadays people smile when you mention 'Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight.' It has been recited so much by people with cracked voices that it has become a joke. Yet if you examine the poem calmly, and impartially you will find that it has a great deal of merit."

"In the schools the pupils are permitted to recite some of our best poems, and the poems aren't fit for anything after it. The school authorities should prohibit this sort of thing, and prepare a volume of cheap asbestos poetry that is fool proof, that can't be injured, no matter what you do to it. There is plenty of punk poetry in the world, and a collection of this stuff would serve the schoolboy elocutionists just as well as the high class poetry that is so easily spoiled."

"When I went to school, about a hundred years ago, there was a tall, freckled, gangling boy, who talked through his nose, with a sort of whine that sounded like filing a saw. There was to be a school entertainment, and this boy was down for a recitation. The teacher never asked him what he was going to recite, but gave him the right of way. Teachers continue to make the same mistake, even as we go to press. They should choose the poems which are to be butchered to make a Roman holiday and select something that won't rip, ravel or run down at the heel."

"This boy stood up before the school and droned through Gray's 'Elegy.' Now, that's one of the best rhymes ever composed. It was written by a journeyman poet who put in seven years at it, in the time when they had ten-hour days. He wanted to leave behind him a poem that would stand the severest tests of the government inspectors, and he did. In my opinion there is nothing better in any language. It is rather melancholy, but it has a sort of doggone soothing quality that is a balm to the bruised spirit of a landlord when he finds that the receipts of his hotel don't equal the expenses."

"Time and again, when discouraged and played out, I have started to read that poem, and as soon as I get fairly into it, I seem to see that blamed gangling schoolboy, in his high-water garments, and hear him droning through those verses, making a noise like a sawmill on a wet day. It's more than forty years since he made a violent assault upon the Elegy, but it seems like yesterday. It's the same way with Hamlet's 'Soliloquy.' Every time I hear or see that gem I think of a fat youth who recited it in our school, and then I burst into tears."

"There's no sense in such a business, and congress ought to do something, doggone it."

Cigarette Smoking.
Cigarette smoking is on the increase all over the world, according to a census of the industry. In 1919 39,000,000 "coffin nails" were smoked in the United States and more than 16,000,000 were exported.

FOOD AND LABOR ECONOMIES.

We, of necessity, do much planning to get a dollar's worth of food from the dollar expended. Now, dinners of function do not exceed five courses, while in the home a four-course dinner is sufficiently elaborate to suit the most fastidious. Many clever ideas sprang up during the press of war which are too fine to be ever given up. Among these is the plate dinner served in so many restaurants. Meat and vegetables side by side in one receptacle, which reduces the work of serving and dish washing. In the home such dishes as can be cooked and served with the main course in one dish have become very popular.

The serving table or wheeled tray now appears with three stories, so the maidless home may have served the entire dinner with very few steps.

The soiling of linen has brought us to bare tables with doilies and runners, which saves us laundry bills and much work. The oilcloth table sets have been a wonderful blessing in many families and the use of the paper napkin is not to be despised.

Living quarters have been reduced until the living room and dining room in many apartments must of necessity be one. The gate-leg table which may be pushed back against the wall when not in use or can serve as the library table when not dining; with screens to use in the room to give some privacy; a couch by day will be the sleeping quarters at night; all add to the comfort.

While we are all working to simplify our mode of living to give us more time to do the things worth while, let us at this season do away with half or more of the bric-a-brac, pictures and other things which are only a weariness to the flesh. In this way, by changing about in spring and fall, we will enjoy and appreciate each piece and picture more fully.

A home to be comfortable and homelike need not be crowded with things; the things we use and enjoy are the only necessary furnishings, and the more space around them the more comfort and enjoyment we will have.

Life's Various Stages.
Youth scorns the indecisions of Age and gambles deeply with life. Youth has all to gain and naught but life to lose. He learns the white hot heat of anger when but a child; later, the suffocating hopes and godlike quality of love. Come still later many stout throwbacks into realities and buffetings which temper judgment, but the forward march continues unabated. Zeal to live is paramount and always must Youth bow to Age's indecisions, slow movements, and paralyzing fears which are grouped with Age's uncertainties. So is a man molded and the wine of life aged.—"Ursus" in Chicago Tribune.

More Modest, Perhaps.
Men, of course, are prouder of their college degrees than women; witness the fact that male college graduates of the class of '90 like to sport the figures after their names, and women do not.—Boston Transcript.

IT WAS LUCKIEST DAY OF HER LIFE

Altoona Woman Says She Feels Like A Different Person Since Taking Tanlac.

Mrs. Mary Kelly, of 2010 10th Ave., Altoona, Penn., is now an ardent champion of the merits of Tanlac since she began taking it several weeks ago.

While discussing Tanlac which has been so beneficial to her Mrs. Kelly became very enthusiastic and, in commenting on her on her improved condition, said:

"Or two years before I got Tanlac my whole system was disordered and I was simply in a miserable condition. Everything I ate seemed to sour and turn to gas and almost set me wild with pains, and I finally got so bad off I couldn't walk to the store or go to church. My feet were so sore and swollen I could hardly get my shoes on and walking was simply torture. My head ached dreadfully, and I was losing in weight. I scarcely had strength enough to dress myself and felt so worn out I hardly expected to be able to get out, and about again.

"It was the luckiest day of my life when I started taking Tanlac, for the medicine proved to be the turning point in my awful suffering and three bottles have simply made me feel like an entirely different person. My appetite is just wonderful now, my stomach never troubles me and I'm picking up right along in weight. I never have an ache or pain and get around and do my housework just as lively as I ever could. In fact I can't remember the time I ever felt better in my life than I do now, and I can't praise Tanlac enough for my wonderful health and strength."—Adv.

Miss Nancy Bowers

A pioneer resident of Woodbury township, died at her home on Thursday after an illness of several weeks' duration from diseases incident to advanced age. She was born Sept. 21, 1842, and at the time of her death was almost 79 years old. She was the daughter of Michael Bowers, late of Woodbury township, and the last survivor of a family of eleven children. She was of the Reformed faith, and was of a retiring disposition, although she had a large number of warm friends. She was a woman of strong character, with positive convictions. Funeral services were held at her residence Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment was made in the Bowers family cemetery, in Woodbury township.

TEWELL REUNION

The Tewell reunion which has become an annual affair in this section was held at Mt. Zion Saturday, September 3, 1921. There were present 262 people, an increase of 12 over last year, showing that this Tewell family never has nor never will believe in race suicide. The down-pour of rain, instead of marring the day's pleasure, seemed to come just at an opportune time for it gave the guests an opportunity to rest under the shelter of Mt. Zion church and enjoy a most interesting programme which was rendered to the music of the patterning drops. This programme consisted of congregational singing, recitations, readings, stories, travel game played and a very interesting talk by Rev. John Bennett, also music by the Bedford Orchestra. Just as the Lord has always guided the Tewell family from a deluge of all persecutions from the time the first landed on the spot that Mt. Zion now 301 years ago, so too He guided and protected the descendants on this occasion as He left the heavens to weep at the sorrows and the guests to laugh at the joys. A short business session was held and the following officers selected for the ensuing year: President, A. L. Tewell; Vice-President, Everett Trail; Recording Secretary, J. G. Colling; Corresponding Secretary, William Dicken; Treasurer, Fred Tewell.

The banquet spread before them was simple indescribable, but how it was relished was clearly shown by the appetites of those who stood around the festive board which was set in the form of a T. A full day was spent upon the grounds and all departed filled with joy and looking forward to the meeting next year which will be held the first Saturday in September at Mt. Zion.

Emblem of Satisfaction

BUICK

Emblem of Satisfaction

There are five factors that should influence the buyer in the selection of his motor car.

First of all, what are the manufacturer's facilities and policies, as evidenced by the manufacturer's standing in the industry?

Second, what are the production plans and the system of manufacture? These are important, for they bear on value received for money expended.

Third, is the chassis mechanically correct in preserving the proper relation between power and load, comfort and safety, performance and durability?

Fourth, does the manufacturer furnish a body type exactly suited to the buyer's motoring requirements?

And fifth, what is the extent of the manufacturer's desire, once the car is bought to guarantee the owner uninterrupted transportation?

One would hardly be justified in purchasing a car solely on the strength of one or even several of these factors. Only when the five are properly co-ordinated is true motor car efficiency found.

Thorough consistency in all of these factors is seen reflected in Buick for Nineteen Twenty-Two. Manufactured in the efficiently organized Buick factory according to policies and principles that have been distinctly Buick for twenty years, the new Buick reaches the highest pinnacle in its development.

Critical and experienced motorists, who have in their own way considered these factors, have found that the purchase of a Buick is an investment in a perfectly developed, well engineered motor car, precisely manufactured and backed by authorized service.

And each of the eleven models for Nineteen Twenty Two has a particular range of usefulness, permitting any purchaser to select a Buick car exactly suited and equipped to serve him to the utmost limit of his demands for utility.

ROUND KNOB

We have been having lots of rain the past week, which has raised the water some. The springs and wells were all getting very low.

Simon Chaney is suffering with congestion of the lungs.

The stork visited at the home of Mike Goworthy last Wednesday evening and left there a big boy. Mike is wearing a broad smile.

Mildred Figard is suffering with diphtheria. We hope for her speedy recovery.

Something has been distributed in our neighborhood which seems to be fatal to the dogs. John Mitchell lost two very fine dogs.

The Grange picnic held at Washington Park on Labor day was a great success. Mr. Roberts delivered a very fine address. The ball game between Coledale and Bellwood resulted in a score of 7-4 in favor of Coledale. Both teams played well.

Wade H. Figard was in Bedford on Saturday transacting legal business.

Ross Himes is digging a well on his premises.

Theophilus S. Figard is in Bedford this week acting as a Petit juror.

Elmer Evans has purchased a new automobile of which he has been making good use.

The Road Board of Broad Top Township met at Albert Figards on Thursday last to transact their monthly business.

Harry B. Winter visited at the home of Wade H. Figard on Sunday last.

Thirty-three persons were baptized at the river at Riddlesburg on Sunday last.

The circus at Coledale last Wednesday drew quite a large crowd. The performance of the trained animals was fine as well as the trapeze performance.

Amelia Figard, who has been suffering with tonsillitis, is improving some at this writing.

Steel Engraving.

Steel engraving is not named for any individual, but is a process of engraving lines on steel plates, from which prints are taken. Steel plates were first used for engraving about 1820. Between 1830 and 1870 this form of art enjoyed a great vogue. The lines are cut into the steel with a burin or graver, a four-sided piece of steel cut off obliquely at one end, producing a sharp point. After the lines are scraped out another tool is used to smooth out and burnish the design.

New Animal for Far North.

The "yak" or woolly ox of Tibet is soon to be transplanted into Alaska and the Canadian Northwest by Dawson men, says an exchange. For centuries the yak has been domesticated by man and its haunts are the snowy highlands of Tibet, 20,000 feet above the sea. Its native food is a coarse wiry grass, but it will eat anything that cattle will. In size it compares favorably with range cattle—1,000 to 1,200 pounds. The meat is as delicious as beef and the wool and hide are valuable.

DOUBTFUL SECURITIES

Innocent investors are being warned against being duped by unsound stock proposition, in these words: "Any guaranteed money-back-when-you-want-it" investment in high rate preferred stock is, to say the least, a self-evident anomaly. Loss is evidently inevitable, especially now when even strong old industrial concerns are hardly able to produce any net earnings."

Controlling Dreams. There does not seem to be much doubt among mental specialists that dreams can be controlled to a certain extent. Don't have "downy" pillows, which cause too much heat. They should be low, thus relieving the work of the heart. Dreams should be left wide open. Let nervous children have a night-light. These are among the hints given by an expert to those who would have pleasant dreams.

ELECTION PROCLAMATION

GREETING:

WHEREAS, In consequence of the death of the Honorable Mahlon E. Garland, who was elected Representative-at-Large in the Sixty-seventh

Congress, a vacancy exists in the representative of this State in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, WILLIAM C. SPROUL, Governor of the said Commonwealth, in pursuance of the provisions of the Constitution of the United States and of an Act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, entitled "An Act relating to the elections of this Commonwealth," approved the second day of July, A. D. 1839, have issued this writ commanding the Sheriffs of the several counties of this Commonwealth to hold an election in their respective counties on in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one; for the election of a Representative of this Commonwealth, in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, to fill the vacancy as aforesaid; and you are hereby required and enjoined to give lawful notice of the said election and to cause the same to be held and conducted, and to make return thereof in manner and form as by law is directed and required.

GIVEN under my hand and the Great Seal of the State, at Harrisburg, this twenty-third day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, and of the Commonwealth the one hundred and forty-fifth.

By the Governor,
WILLIAM C. SPROUL,
CYRUS E. WOODS,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

(SEAL)

Therefore, I, J. M. Fink, High Sheriff of the county of Bedford, do make known by this proclamation, to the electors of said county, that a special election will be held on TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20th, 1921, it being the Tuesday following the third Monday of said month in the several election districts of Bedford county, at which time and place the said electors will vote by ballot for the office, to wit:

One person for Representative-at-Large.

To vote a straight party ticket, mark a cross (X) in the square in the FIRST COLUMN opposite the name of the party of your choice.

A Cross Mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate indicates a vote for that candidate.

To vote for a person whose name is not on the ballot, write or paste his name in the blank space provided for that purpose.

To vote for an individual candidate of another party, after marking a mark in the party square, mark a cross (X) opposite his name.

B. E. P. Prugh.

At the same time and place the electors of said county will vote as to whether or not there will be a constitutional convention held in 1921 on a Ballot as follows:

Shall a Constitutional Convention be held in the year One thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, as provided in the Act of Assembly, approved the twenty-seventh day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

Voters favoring the holding of a Constitutional Convention in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two will mark a cross (X) to the right of the word "YES."

Those opposing the holding of a Convention will mark a Cross (X) to the right of the word "NO."

I also hereby make known and give notice that the places for holding the aforesaid election in the several wards, boroughs, townships and districts within said county are at their usual places.

TIME OF OPENING AND CLOSING THE POLLS.

At all elections hereafter held under the law of this Commonwealth, the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock a. m. and close at seven o'clock p. m.

I hereby also make known and give notice that every person, excepting justice of the peace, who shall hold any office or appointment of profit or trust under the government of the United States, or of any State, or of any city or incorporated district, whether a commissioned officer or otherwise, a subordinate officer or agent who is or shall be employed under the Legislative, Executive or Judiciary Department of this State, or of the United States or of any city or incorporated district and also that every member of Congress and the State Legislature, and of the select or common council of any city, or commissioners of any incorporated district, is by law incapable of holding or exercising at the same time the office or appointment of judge, inspector or clerk of any election of this Commonwealth, and that no inspector, judge or other election officer of any such election shall be eligible to any office to be then voted for except that of an election officer.

Given under my hand and seal at my office in Bedford this 5th day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one and of the Commonwealth the one hundred and forty-fifth.

POULTRY FLOCKS

POULTRY FLOCK IN BACKYARD

Will Convert Table Scraps and Kitchen Waste Into Wholesome and Nutritious Food.

In every household, no matter how economical the housewife, there is a certain amount of table scraps and kitchen waste which has feeding value, but which, if not fed, finds its way into the garbage pail.

Poultry is the only class of domestic animals suitable for converting this waste material, right where it is produced in the city, into wholesome and nutritious food in the form of eggs and poultry meat.

Each hen in her pullet year should produce 10 dozen eggs poultry year.

Help Reduce Cost of Living by Keeping Small Flock of Hens in Back Yard.

Analysts of the United States Department of Agriculture say. The average size of the backyard flock should be at least 10 hens. Thus, each flock would produce in a year 100 dozen of eggs, which at the conservative value of 35 cents a dozen, would be worth $35.

By keeping a backyard poultry flock the family would not only help in reducing the cost of living but would have eggs of a quality and freshness often difficult to obtain.

Remember that eggs produced by the backyard flock cost very little, as the fowls are fed largely upon waste materials.

AUTUMN TROUBLES IN FLOCK

Roup is One of Most Common Diseases and is Most Often Contracted by Weak Fowls.

One of the most common diseases of the farm poultry flock during the autumn is roup. This disease is frequently found in damp, poorly ventilated houses and is most often contracted by birds that are poorly developed and of low vitality. Fowls of this type frequently get roup and are the means of spreading it throughout the flock. Obviously, prevention should consist of eliminating the weaklings from the flock and providing a house that will be dry and free from drafts, but well ventilated, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

An additional prevention against this disease is the following: Add as much potassium permanganate as will remain on the surface of a dime to each gallon of drinking water and keep before the fowls. This acts as an antiseptic and will help to keep the birds in good condition. An attempt to cure the individual of roup is not advisable, for, although in the majority of cases, there may be an apparent cure, the danger of reinfection is great, and frequently such birds cause the disease to spread throughout the flock. The safest policy is immediately to remove such birds from the flock and kill them as soon as they show the first symptoms, recognized by a watery discharge from the nostrils or eyes.

KEEP DUCKS AND GEESSE BUSY

Feed Enough to Keep Them in Condition and Leave Them Eager for Something More.

After the birds are mated, preferably not later than December 1, keep them active. Their ration should be bulky, using about one-fifth of green stuff. They should not be fed all they can eat, but enough to keep them in condition and leave them eager for food.

They do better on cracked corn than on a ration of cornmeal only. If ducks and geese are wintered in good condition, and mated early, there should be no difficulty in getting fertile eggs. Too early eggs are not desirable. Ducks especially lay very early in the morning, and the very early eggs are apt to freeze.

THE NEW DENTIST

By MILDRED WHITE.

"I reckon the girls will be glad," said Miss Stebbins.

"Caleb has been the only unmarried man in town for so long, that they've been about discouraged. And you know, Linda, you never would let Caleb take up with anybody, no matter how much he'd been a mind to."

Belinda Carson smiled grimly.

"If Caleb had a wanted a girl," she replied, "I couldn't a stopped him. But he didn't. They's all too helterskelter for him. He'd rather set home an' study than dance around evenings to the corners. And the bold ones that come here pretendin' to see me, disgusted him. Course, he never said so right out, but when I'd tell him, 'Brother, my rheumatism is worse tonight, but if you really feel you ought take that silly extravagant creature home, why do it,' Caleb would answer, 'no Belinda, every time.'"

Miss Stebbins chuckled.

"Knew he'd have to stand your hysterics after he got home if he took her," she said dryly.

"You know, well's I do, Linda, that it's your weakness working on his kind heart that holds him."

"To bad, too," the friend added dryly, "your brother would make a good husband for some girl. But as I was sayin' they've all give up the idea long ago. And now that this new dentist has renten Ball's house, the girls is beginnin' to set up an' take notice."

"Anybody seen him?" asked Belinda interested.

"I see some good-looking man," her friend responded, "fittin' a key in the front door as I came along. Big and city-fied lookin'. Had a satchel in his hand. Went right in as if he was to home."

Miss Belinda rocked excitedly.

"How that Kitty Wells will fix up and gad around now. Seems as if she was the hardest to discourage about Caleb."

"Good-by," said Belinda. There was little news of the new dentist. Ball house was far away in it's walled-in garden, and those who ventured inside did not seek out the garulous Miss Stebbins. The latest information that she could bring to her friend, was that the good-looking young man whom she had noticed entering the Ball house, clipped the grass regularly as she passed, or might be seen evenings flying past in a closed motor car.

Caleb came into the room as the friends talked. He stood looking down at his crippled old sister.

"Linda," he spoke gently, "I am going out, but I will not stay long."

"Where?" she querulously inquired.

Caleb smiled.

"To the dentist's," he said.

Belinda regarded him with unaccustomed sympathy.

"Well," she exclaimed, "I reckon you can't hurry away from there."

Her brother laughed.

"I can't, and that's a fact," he said.

Miss Stebbins gazed after him thoughtfully.

"So Caleb's havin' his teeth fixed," she said. "Well, I wondered what's been makin' him better lookin'. Sort o' perked up, or more important or something. Seen him swingin' down street today smilin' right an' left, an' come to think his teeth did shide out whiter than I ever noticed. Mebbe he an' this dentist fellow will be friends."

"Who," she asked presently, "did you say that pretty girl was that you saw drivin' with the doctor?"

"I didn't say," replied Miss Stebbins, "because I didn't know. But a woman I pointed the girl out to told me she'd come from the city."

"Shouldn't think Caleb could get much work done to the dentist's, evenings."

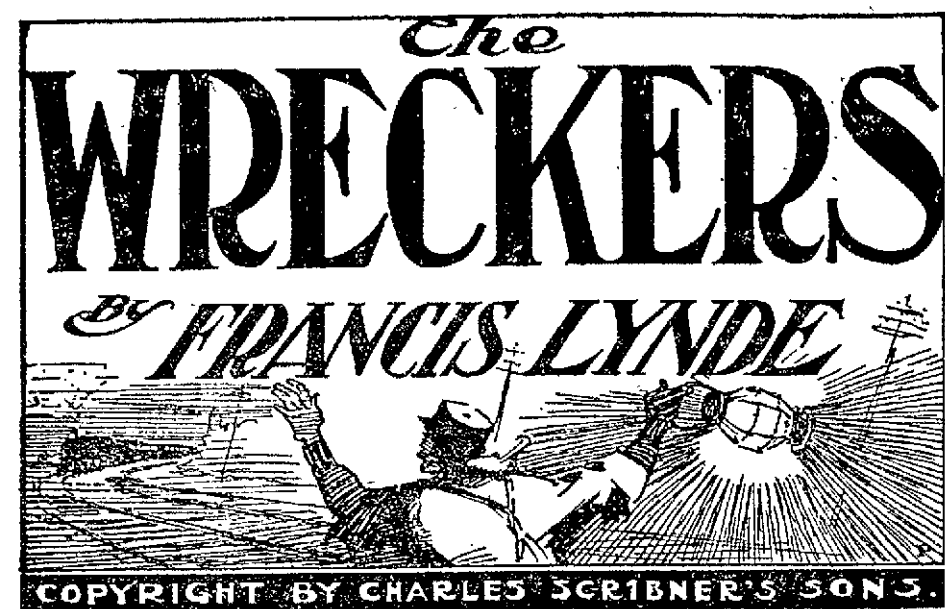

"It's been the only time he could take," Belinda responded.

"They been busy at the bank, lately."

Down the road came a small closed car. In it sat, with strange new confidence Caleb Carson, at his side and driving the car was a very pretty and apparently capable young woman. The two alighted, to the amazement of their watchers, and ascended the porch steps; then Caleb led the girl into the room.

"Belinda," he said in the gentle tone he kept for her, "I want you to know Rosalie Dale. Rosalie has promised to become my wife. She is known to people here as Doctor Dale, the dentist."

Chapter XV Continued from last week.

The boss had picked up his paper-knife. "I don't know why you should come to me for help," he said. "You have been hand-in-glove with these conspirators ever since you came out here. Two days ago you knew that they had set a trap for my special train on the Strathcona branch—a trap that was meant to kill me."

It was a random shot, and I knew that Mr. Norcross was just guessing at where it might land when he fired it. But it went home; oh, you bet it went home!

"D—n you!" gurgled the boulder, half-starting to his feet. "Why shouldn't

"Why Shouldn't I Want to See You Killed?"

I want to see you killed? Haven't you done enough to me?"

"No!" the word was slammed at him like a bullet. And then: "As I told you in the beginning, we won't go into any phase of it that involves Mrs. Collingwood. Get back into your own boat. Are you trying to tell me now that Hatch is threatening you?"

"He's played me for a come-on. He says he's got the whole business down in black and white, with affidavits, and all that. He had the nerve to tell me less than an hour ago that he'd burn me alive if I didn't toe the mark."

"What does he want you to do?"

"He wants me to stick around here so that he can use me against you. He knows how you're mixed up with Sheila and that you can't turn a wheel without making it look as if you were going after me on your own personal account."

There was silence for a little time. It was an awful muddle, with bloody murder sticking out of it on every side.

"If you have come here with the idea that I can force Hatch's hand, you are very much misled," said the boss at the close of the electric pause. And then: "Has he made it appear to you that he was merely trying to help you avenge your own fancied wrongs?"

"He said I ought to get you; that any man who would make love to a married woman ought to be got."

My chief was looking past the derelict and out through the darkened window.

"You don't know me, Mr. Collingwood, but you do know your wife; and you know that she is as far above suspicion as the angels in heaven. Let that part of it go. Hatch was merely using you for his own ends. If he could persuade you to kill me off out of the way, it would be merely that much gained in the business fight. You haven't done it thus far, and now he is using your check-cashing excursion as a club with which he proposes to brain the entire railroad management, your uncle included, if we interfere with his plans."

Collingwood scowled up at the ceiling, shifting the dead cigar from one corner of his mouth to the other.

"So that's the way of it, is it?" he commented. "He was working for his own pocket all the time, and Uncle Breck stands pat and slips him the ace he was needing to make his hand a winner. Between you and me, Norcross, I believe this d—d piker needs killing a few times, himself."

The boss sat back in his swivel chair and I could just imagine that he was trying to get some sort of proper angle on this young fellow who, in addition to his other scoundrelisms, big and little, had wrecked the life of Sheila Macrae. I knew what he was thinking. He had a theory that no man that was ever born was either all angel or all devil, and he was hunting for the redeeming streak in this one.

haggard face you could see something sort of half-appealing in it; something to make you think that perhaps, away back yonder before the spoiling began, there used to be a man; never a strong man, I guess, but one that might have been generous and free-hearted, maybe. I got a fleeting little glimpse of that back-number man when he turned suddenly and said:

"One night a few weeks ago when I was full up, Hatch got hold of me and told me you were out at the Kendrick place with Sheila. He made me believe that I ought to go out there and kill you, and I started to do it. Do you know why I didn't do it?"

"No," said the chief, mighty quietly.

"Well, I'll tell you. One night last spring up at the Bullard you slammed me one in the face and dragged me off to my room to keep me from making a bigger ass of myself than I'd already made. I haven't forgotten that. In all these crooked years, nobody else has even taken the trouble to chuck me decently out of sight and give me a chance to brace. Drunk as I was, I remembered it that night when I was climbing up to a window in the major's house and trying to get a shot at you."

Mr. Norcross shook his head, more than half sympathetically, I thought. "Let that part of it go and tell me about this other trouble," he said. "How badly are you tangled up in this political business?"

"I've given it to you straight on the bribing proposition. Uncle Breck used me as a money carrier because—well, maybe it was because he couldn't trust Bullock. I didn't know definitely what Bullock was doing with the checks I cashed for him, though I supposed, of course, it was something that wouldn't stand daylight. It was only a side issue with me. I was coming out here anyway. I knew Sheila had made up her mind—God knows she's had cause enough; but I had a crazy notion that I'd like to be on the same side of the earth with her again for just a little while. Then this—" he trailed off in a babble of maledictions poured out upon the man who had trapped him and used him.

The boss straightened himself in his chair, but he still was speaking gently when he said:

"You are not asking my advice, and I don't owe you anything, personally, Mr. Collingwood. But I'll say to you what I might say to a better man in like circumstances. You have done all the harm you can, but, as I see it, there doesn't seem to be any need of your staying here to suffer the consequences. Why don't you go back to New York, taking your wife with you, if she will go?"

Collingwood's smile was a mere teeth-baring grimace.

"Sheila made her wedding journey with me once, when she was just eighteen. The next time she rides with me it will be at my funeral. Oh, I've earned it, and I'm not kicking. And about this other thing: I can't duck. You know what Hatch is holding me for. He told me just a little while ago that if I stepped aboard of a train, I'd be arrested before the train could pull out."

It was a handsome little precaution on the part of the chief of the grafters. If a fight should be precipitated—if the boss should try to checkmate the C. S. & W. gobble—the arrest and indictment of President Dunton's nephew would serve bully good and well as a dramatic bit of side play to keep the newspapers from printing too much about the other thing.

"If you really want to go, I think it can be arranged in some way, in spite of Hatch and his bluffing," Mr. Norcross put in quietly. "So far as our railroad troubles are concerned it will neither help nor hinder for you to stay on here, now."

As if the helpful suggestion had been a lighted match to fire a hidden mine of rage, Collingwood sprang to his feet with his dull eyes ablaze.

"No, by God!" he swore. "I'm going to make him come across with those affidavit papers first! You wait right here, Norcross. You think I'm all cut, but I'll show you. There isn't much left of me but bound dog, but even a bound dog will bite if you kick him hard enough. Lead me a gun, if you've got one and I'll—"

"Hold on—none of that!" the boss broke in sternly, jumping out of his chair to enforce the command. But before he could make the grabbing move the corridor door slammed noisily and the madman was gone.

CHAPTER XVI

The Deserter

Mr. Norcross chafed out and tried to overtake Collingwood, going as far as the foot of the stairs. I went, too, but got only far enough to meet the boss coming up again. There was nothing doing. The station policeman had seen the crazy rounder jump into a taxi and go spinning off up-town.

There was another jolt waiting for us when we got back to the office. While we were both out, Mr. Van Britt had blown in from his room at the foot of the hall and we found him lounging comfortably in the chair that Collingwood had just vacated.

"I thought maybe you'd turn up again pretty soon, since you'd left the doors all open," was the way he started out. Then: "Sit down, Graham; I want to talk a few lines."

Mr. Norcross took his own chair and twirled it to face the general superintendent. "Say it," he commanded briefly.

Mr. Van Britt hooked his thumbs in his armpits.

"I've just been figuring a bit on the general outlook: you have a decently efficient operating outfit here, what with Perkins and Brunt and Conway handling the three divisions as self-contained units. You don't need a general superintendent any more than a monkey needs two tails."

"What are you driving at?" was the curt demand.

"Well, suppose we say retrenchment, for one thing. As I size it up, you might just as well be saving my salary. It would buy a good many new cross-ties in the course of a year."

"That's all bunk, and you know it," snapped the boss. "The organization as it stands hasn't a single stick of dead wood in it. You know very well that a railroad the size of the Short Line can't run without an individual head of the operating department."

Mr. Van Britt laughed a little at that.

"If you should get some one of these new efficiency experts out here he would probably tell you that you could cut your staff right in two in the middle."

I could see that the boss was getting mighty nearly impatient.

"You are merely turning handsprings around the edges of the thing you have come to say, Upton," he barked out. "Come to the point, can't you? What have you got up your sleeve?"

"Nothing that I could make you understand in a month of Sundays. I'm sore on my job and I want to quit."

"Nonsense! You don't mean that?"

"Yes, I do. I'm tired of wearing the brass collar of a soulless corporation. What's the use, anyway? I found a bunch of dividend checks from my bank at home in the mail to-day, and what good does the money do me? I can't spend it out here; can't even tip the servants at the hotel without everlastingly demoralizing them. I'm like the little boy who wanted to go out in the garden and eat worms."

The boss was frowning thoughtfully.

"You're not giving me a show, Upton," he protested. "Can't you blow the froth off and let me see what's in the bottom of the stein?"

"Pledge you my word, it's all froth, Graham. I want to climb up on the mesa behind the shops and take a good deep breath of free air and shake my fist at your blamed old cow-track of a railroad and tell it to go to the devil. You shouldn't deny me a little pleasure like that."

It was getting under the boss' skin at last. "I can't believe that you really want to resign," he broke out, sort of hopelessly. "It's simply preposterous!"

"Pull it down out of the future and put it in the present, and you've got it," said Mr. Van Britt. "I have resigned. I wrote it out on a piece of paper and dropped it into your mail box as I came through the outer office. It's signed, sealed, and delivered. You'll give me a testimonial, or something of that sort, 'To Whom It May Concern,' won't you? I've been obedient and faithful and honest and efficient, and all that, haven't I?"

"I'd like to know where you got your liquor, Upton. That is the most charitable construction I can put upon all this. Why, man alive! you're quitting me in the thick of the toughest fight the grafters have put up!"

"Yes, I know; but a man's got only one life to live, and I've always had a sneaking sympathy for the high private in the front rank who didn't want to stand up and get himself shot full of holes. I'm running, and if you should ask me why, I'd tell you what the retreating soldier told Stonewall

ILL FOUR YEARS

McKeesport, Pa.—"I have derived great benefit from using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery. For nearly four years I was in poor health, suffering with feminine trouble; in fact, I could not live in these few lines describe my feelings, but will say I felt miserably all the time.

Going a Little Too Far.

Two small boys were quarreling over the possession of a toy bank when a noted local financier, who was passing, stopped and said to the younger: "Shame on you, my boy. Don't you want him to save his money?" "I don't care what he does with his money," replied the youth. "But he wants to save mine along with it."

MEADE MEMORIAL THING OF BEAUTY

STATUE SOON TO BE PLACED IN THE BOTANICAL GARDENS
IN WASHINGTON.

COMPARES WELL WITH ANY

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—What is conceded to be one of the handsomest works of art of its kind ever erected in the District of Columbia, is the Meade Memorial, which will be placed in position in the botanic gardens shortly. This tribute to Maj. Gen. George G. Meade, who commanded the army of the Potomac at the battle of Gettysburg, is to be in the form of a white stone statue of heroic size and with an elaborate base. It will serve as a companion piece to the Grant memorial in the botanic gardens.

Col. Clarence O. Sherrill, superintendent of public buildings and grounds, is of the opinion that the Meade memorial will compare favorably with any park statue anywhere in the world. It is the work of Charles Groslys of Gloucester, Mass., designer and sculptor, who has worked for more than six years on the creation of the statue. He already has started cutting the statue from stone, following designs submitted and approved by the fine arts commission, and in the meantime the work of constructing the base in the botanic gardens is under way.

Will Portray Virtues.

In describing the memorial, Colonel Sherrill said:

"The problem provoked by the chosen site for the Meade memorial dictated a form which should be equal in interest and fullness of workmanship from every vantage point. Working upon this basis, the artist conceived a circle of figures which should embody the qualities which are essential to the character of a great general. These six qualities—Military Courage, Energy, Fame, Loyalty, Chivalry and Progress—while recognizing their origin in the spirit of war, look toward General Meade as the composite of their several virtues."

"The figure of General Meade is thus rendered the center of the artistic design, and the focal point in the imaginative conception. He stands, his work accomplished, ready to step forth from the cloak of battle into the future era of progress. Chivalry (at his right) and Loyalty (at his left), hold back the cloak, while Loyalty also raises aloft over Meade's head a standard of wreath and garlands, in commemoration of a great achievement. Fame and Progress occupy the central position (right and left) on either side of the group."

Progress Shown Ideal.

"The figure of Progress, on the other hand, is dynamic in the strength of its own potentialities. It is a figure which more nearly approximates the ideal, and which will gather from its own being the wings of action. To its left, Military Courage clings with bulldog tenacity to the dominant figure of the rear group, War, from which it takes its being. To the left of War, the figure of Energy yielding to the urge of Fame, loosens his grasp upon the arm of War, aquiver for the greater achievement yet to come. War, itself, occupying the central position in the rear group, a massive architectural figure, unchanging and unchanged since war first ravaged the world, holds in his grim clutch two memorial tablets. His wings, in long sweeping curves, stretch toward the standard which Loyalty holds above the head of Meade. The side groups are thus outlined against the ominous shadow of the wings of War."

"From the grim determination of Military Courage through the figure of Energy to the figures of Chivalry and Loyalty, the urge is onward and forward toward Progress and Fame, which, alone, of the group have the power to move with General Meade into the accomplishment of the future. Although his dark wings may carry him through other ages and other lands, War will ever remain the same, unchanging. But the great general will move forward, leaving behind him the static, symbolized in the figures of war and of military courage. The command is 'forward!'"

"Lost Battalion" Is Found.

A "lost battalion" of marines, six officers and 274 men, has been formally found by the Navy department. Since August, 1917, the battalion has been stationed at Camaguey, Cuba, in the very heart of the island, with no apparent reason for its being kept on such an assignment since the days of the war.

The discovery of the "missing" marines was made by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, after dint of much searching of records and inquiry among marine officers. The hunt was started as the result of the recent incident in Camaguey when marines kicked up some excitement in the Cuban town after Le Roy Foster, an American engineer and former navy officer had been attacked and beaten by Cubans.

"What are the marines doing in Camaguey?" Mr. Roosevelt asked himself, after looking at the map of Cuba.

And the question was asked by others equally curious. Nobody seemed to know. Major General Lejeune, commandant of the corps said they were there all right, but could vouchsafe no additional information. The navy list showed marine officers regularly assigned to the Camaguey post, but the warrant for such duty seemed to be lacking.

Sent to Guard Sugar Properties.

Finally red-taped papers were found which showed that, back in 1917, shortly after Cuba entered the war on the heels of the United States, the Cuban government had requested the State department to permit the stationing of American marines at Camaguey to guard the great sugar properties there against pro-German plots.

The American government, anxious to conserve the sugar supply, sent the marines from the Guantanamo naval base, and there they have been ever since. Only diplomatic negotiations probably can remove them. The Navy department and the marine corps will see that they are there until called off by the President.

Nurses' Training School.

Uncle Sam has just inaugurated a training school for nurses. The courses will be for four years, and the training will be under the direct supervision of the United States public health service, with headquarters in this city. Among the inducements to young women to enroll is the government's guarantee to house, feed and train them, besides the payment of $30 a month during the first three years, and $40 a month during the final year. The students also will be presented with diplomas when they become proficient, and will be given opportunities to assist in caring for disabled military patients.

The first schools are at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, and at Fox Hills, Staten Island. Other schools will be opened later in the year, and they will be conducted at certain hospitals of the public health service.

Increase of Pellagra.

Despite the indignant denials of some of the southern states, it appears likely that there will be a decided increase in the extent of pellagra in the South this year. Surgeon General Cumming, head of the public health service, recently sent to President Harding a letter which, it is declared, confirms this view.

The letter recounts that the conference of health officials which met recently in Washington had objected principally to the allegation that pellagra was on the increase, and that the increase was caused by a "famine."

"In so far as the use of the word 'famine' is concerned," Doctor Cumming wrote, "the public health service pointed out that it had used the term in a scientific, restricted sense, referring to a diet which lacked some essential elements of nutrition."

Doctor Cumming remarked "but the state health officers present at the conference had voted against the following clause in a resolution submitted by one of their members: 'We do not regard the situation in any sense as more serious than in the last several years.'"

Marked Increases Shown.

The letter said that, with the exception of Mississippi, no reliable morbidity statistics were available from the South, but that Mississippi figures showed pellagra had doubled in that state in the first six months of 1921.

A memorandum was attached to the White House statement embodying the letter from Doctor Cumming, as follows:

"Information indicates a definite increase of pellagra this year in Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Texas and probably North and South Carolina. Some evidence also indicates an increase in Georgia. In Kentucky and Virginia, testimony points to a decrease. Conservative estimates indicate 5,000 deaths and 100,000 cases of pellagra in the country in 1921."

Doctor Cumming said it had been brought out that, in various localities in the South, conditions were such that the essential foods required to prevent the development of pellagra were obtainable only with difficulty, and in some instances were entirely beyond the reach of the poorer working people. He explained that this situation had been brought about largely by the custom of one-crop farming.

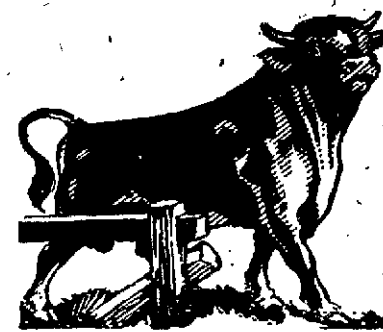

Helping With Proper Food.

"It was gratifying to learn of the progress made largely through the efforts of the Department of Agriculture to bring about greater diversity in farm crops," the letter continued.

"The home demonstration agents have repeatedly pointed out the unwise wisdom of farming only a single staple crop, while relying on the income from this to purchase necessary elements of diet, such as fresh vegetables, milk, eggs, chickens and fresh meats."

"Moreover, the fact was brought out that, although there has been some increase in dairying in the South, yet, as a result of the recent depression, many a struggling farmer in a mistaken sense of economy, has disposed of the family cow, a most important agent in pellagra prevention."

"The object aimed at by the public health service," Doctor Cumming told the President, "has undoubtedly been brought much nearer to attainment as a result of the splendid support given by your letter. It is gratifying to report that all the states feel able to meet any demands for emergency relief, without requiring any outside assistance, although requests were made that expert assistants be detailed from the public health service to the various state health offices."

FARM STOCK

HOG-CHOLERA LOSS REDUCED

Estimated Saving of $6,000 to Farmers of Alabama County Brought About by County Agent.

Losses by hog cholera have been materially reduced in Rock county, Alabama, as a result of the work of the county agent in training farmers in various centers throughout the county to use the serum and apparatus developed by the United States Department of Agriculture. Forty-nine cars of hogs, 3,928 head, have been marketed from the county through co-operative work, with an estimated saving of $6,000. In Houston county the department's representative taught 13 men to vaccinate hogs. Six sets of instruments owned by the Dothan Rotary club were supplied to the demonstrators and a serum-distributing point was established in charge of a reliable veterinarian. More than 9,000 head of hogs were treated. In many cases it was found that sickness, other than cholera, was due to some incidental cause, such as bad peanut meal, and balanced rations were advised. The county agent's work resulted in 82 farmers establishing pastures to keep their hogs off the open range, the land thus pastured being freed from many noxious weeds by the rooting of the animals, and prepared for future cultivation. Forty-four farmers in the county were interested in stump removing, and about 2,000 acres of land was cleared in this movement. About five tons of dynamite was bought for the purpose largely on the co-operative plan.

SEGREGATE ALL NEW ANIMALS

Wise Plan to Place Recent Purchases in Quarantine for at Least Twenty-One Days.

The proper and only safe thing to do with the recently purchased animal is to place it in quarantine upon its arrival. Better keep it there not less than 21 days at least. This enables you to keep a careful watch over the animal at all times, and to determine that the animal is healthy, and in case there should be any disease, it would not be carried to those animals already on the farm.

MAPLE GROVE DAIRY FARM

Bedford, R. F. D. no. 5 located two miles north of Cessna, and two and one-half miles south of Osterburg, with Bedford and Hollidaysburg state road No. 147 which will be built in 1922, on west side of farm on a good township road on east side.

Owing to other business which I desire to devote all my time to, I will sell this farm consisting of 137 acres. About 15 acres in wood lot and young timber. Some large enough for lumber, 2 meadows, one 6 acres and the other 8 acres, 20 acres in blue grass pasture, balance of farm in cultivated land.

By following the most advanced methods of restoring fertility to the soil as advocated by our leading agricultural specialists, I have made this farm one of the best producing in the state.

I arrange to feed all grain, hay and fodder raised to cattle, and return the same to land in form of manure. I have been letting all second crops of clover on land, and plowing them down.

This year I made 35 tons of alfalfa from 8 acres on two cuttings and expect to make 8 or 10 tons more on third cutting. I raised 150 bu of potatoes on 1/2 acre this year. I estimate the corn to yield 150 bu. to the acre.

There are 17 acres of a good stand of Alsike, Red Clover and Timothy for next years hay crop besides the 8 acres in alfalfa. There will be 16 acres sown in wheat. Total crop to go to purchaser of farm.

Orchard of 170 leading varieties of apple trees, five years old in extra good condition. About 25 bearing apple and cherry trees.

Never failing stream of spring water runs thru farm.

I have stone quarried for 25 bu. lime pit which will be burned and ready to put on land this fall.

The buildings consist of, one frame dwelling house 26x30 feet, 7 rooms, pantry and hall with cellar full size of house having a new Caloric murnace in same, Claar telephone in house connecting with Bell system. Abbotts' Osterburg milk truck passes house.

Also one tenant house of five rooms.

Milk house with cement floor and milk vat with running water of 50 degrees temperature also other necessary out buildings.

Main barn, 40x80 with plank floors and platforms for cows, with stanchions, 2 box stalls. A new James manure carrier with 110 feet track, silo 12x30 which will be filled with corn.

One small barn, 24x26 in extra good condition.

The following personal property will go with farm:

New no. 2 International manure spreader, Adriance binder and hay rake, Deering mower, 3 spring tooth harrows, Superior grain drill and all necessary farm implements needed on farm, silage cutter with 35 feet pipe, three unit Hinman milking machine with extra pail and new Fairbank Morse 1 1/2 hp. engine attached, 40 gal. butter churn and worker combined, 20 five gallon milk cans, 4 ten gallon milk cans, four cylinder Buick car with Dodge truck bed, 1200 lbs. capacity, extra good condition, 2 apple butter kettles and six cider barrels, 4 horses with necessary harness, brood sow with seven pigs six weeks old, four year old registered guernsey bull, Glenn Gable Buckley, sired by Langwater Cavalier, one of the greatest bulls of the guernsey breed. Dam Mate O'Queen, 12725 lbs. milk 624 lbs. butter fat, backed by three generations of A. R. records. 6 two year old heifers, 2 one year old heifers, one year old bull. All sired by above guernsey bull, and from heavy producing grade cows, 12 grade cows of mixed breeding that average over 7,000 lbs. of milk, 2 registered Holstein cows, coming six and seven years old, one was fresh in March, on private test she gave 500.6 lbs. of milk in seven days, is capable of a better record. The other one will be fresh in October. These two cows are very heavy and persistent milkers. Their breeding is of the best, being King Sagis and Korndike the 8th.

The creamy test of herd is 4.40% butter fat. 45 tons of alfalfa hay, 15 tons of clover hay, straw off of 17 acres of grain, corn fodder off of 11 acres, 100 bu. of rye, 400 bu. of oats, 1500 bu. of corn, 5 tons of Dairy Feed.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 11

PAUL IN ATHENS.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:16-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—In him we live, and move, and have our being.—Acts 17:28.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Luke 4:16-30.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Telling the People about God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul in Athens.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—In a Foreign City.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul in a Center of Learning. Being Driven from Berea, Paul Fleed to Athens.

I. The Idolatry of the Athenians (v. 16).

Athens was the intellectual metropolis of the world at that time, the home of the world's great eloquence and philosophy. Paul's spirit was stirred within him when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry.

II. The Parties Concerned (vv. 17-21).

True to his usual custom Paul went into the Jewish synagogue and entered into earnest argument with the Jews. From them he turned to such as were found in the market place. Here he came into touch with the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers. The former were atheistic materialists. They denied the doctrine of Creation. They gave themselves up to sensual indulgences since they had no idea of future judgment. The latter were pantheists. When they heard the preaching of Paul they desired to know what new doctrine he preached, so they invited him to the Areopagus where he might speak to them of his new doctrine. They inquired as to what this "babbler" might say. The word "babbler" means literally "seed-picker."

III. Paul's Address on Mars' Hill (vv. 22-31).

1. The introduction (vv. 22, 23). He did not accuse them of "superstition" as the A. V. would make it, but as in the Am. R. V. he introduces his discourse in a courteous and conciliatory manner, stating that he perceived that they were very religious. This he explained by stating that as he was viewing their city he beheld an altar with an inscription "To the Unknown God." This was his point of contact. He proceeds at once to connect it with the idea of the living God, implying that this altar had been erected to Him. He was too wise to begin at once to denounce heathenism and idolatry.

2. The body of his discourse (vv. 24-31).

(1) A declaration concerning God (vv. 24, 25). (a) He created the material universe (v. 24). This was a direct blow at the philosophy of both the Epicureans and the Stoics. He did not attempt to prove the existence of God; it needs no proof. The Bible everywhere assumes the existence of a divine being. (b) His spirituality and immensity (vv. 24, 25). He is not served with "men's hands as though he needed anything," neither is He confined by any sort of religious temple. Being essentially spiritual He demands heart-service, and being transcendent above all He is not confined to earthly temples. (c) His active providence (v. 25). He gives existence, bestows needed gifts, and as sovereign directs all things.

(2) Declaration concerning man (vv. 26-31). (a) His common origin (v. 26). This was a blow at the foolish Athenian pride which supposed that they were superior to all other people. This proposition he proved from their own literature (see v. 28). If men are the offspring of God and bear His likeness it is utter folly to make images as the senseless idols were. (b) Nations have their place by the sovereign purpose of God (v. 26). The position and mission of each nation is of God's appointment. (c) Men should seek God (v. 26). His goodness and grace in supplying all our needs, and ordering even the affairs of the nations should move man to see and seek God, for He is indeed very near to every one; so near that our existence and movements are all under His control (v. 27). (d) Pressing obligation to repent (vv. 30, 31). This was his supreme message. Though God had formerly passed over idolatry He now calls to all men to repent. The solemn reason for such action is the coming day of judgment, the credential of which is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. The judgment of God of an unbelieving world is as sure as this fact. Men will be judged on the basis of their attitude toward Jesus Christ.

IV. Result of Paul's Preaching (vv. 32-34).

1. Some mocked (v. 32).
2. Some prostrated (v. 32).
3. Some believed (v. 34).

All to God.

You should frequently arouse within yourself the desire to give to God all the faculties of your soul—that is, of your mind, to know Him and think of Him, and of your will, to love Him; and further seek to consecrate all your outward senses to Him in all their actions.—Penelon.

Christian Unity.

The spirit of Christian unity must be cultivated between the different churches before formal union can be effected.—Rev. Dr. Douglas.

Another Fashion Milestone

Of course you expect much of us for at the beginning of each season we have been bringing you the newest merchandise at prices that one does not really expect until the Season's close. Again we are doing it and for proof of this statement we invite you to our

Fall Opening of Ladies' Misses' and Children's Ready-to-Wear Garments

September 14 to 17th Inclusive

Our Suits

Wonderful models from Fashion Craft manufactured at $25.00 to $75.00 to other makes from $15.00 to $35.00—Materials—Serge, Velours, Tricotine, Duvet-delaines, Yolama cloths etc. The new longer coats and shorter models embroidered and beaded, trimmed and plain. We show the new chin collars, tuxedo collars and shawl collar and they are either plain or trimmed in Sealine, Beaverette or Australian Oppossum, colors—Mostly navy blue, A few new browns, tans and grays.

Our Coats

Are in plain or fur trimmed styles—in the popular materials of the season including Bolivia, Normandy, Velour, etc. in the new tailorings—Beautifully lined—Handsomely tailored—Priced from $15.00 to $75.00. It has been warm but we have already sold more Fall and Winter Coats than we had sold last Season up to Oct. 1st, proving our styles and prices are right. Any Coat or Suit is yours individually and will not be duplicated in Bedford County.
